

Agnew papers studied

BALTIMORE — Federal investigators began toiling through 130 boxes of subpoenaed documents from Vice President Agnew's two years as Maryland governor. And a grand jury was expected to begin later this week to take testimony on charges, denied by Agnew, that he was involved in a kickback scheme. In addition, the Washington Star-News reported two more contractors have told prosecutors they made payments to Agnew in exchange for preferential treatment.

Red Cross drives regulated

HARRISBURG — Attorney General Israel Packer ruled Monday that organizations such as the Red Cross and Boy Scouts must comply with the state law that regulates charity collections. The Red Cross had argued it was exempt from the Charitable Solicitations Act because it was chartered under federal law. The Pennsylvania law, administered by the Department of State, requires all charities to register and sets a ceiling on the amount that can be spent for fund raising.

Spanish jet crash kills 85

LA CORUNA — A Spanish-owned twin-engine Caravelle jetliner crashed in flames Monday on a cluster of small farm houses after aborting three attempts to land at fog-shrouded La Coruna, airport in Spain. Airline officials said all 85 passengers and crewmembers were killed. The Aviaco Air Company, a subsidiary of Spain's Iberia Airlines, said most of the passengers were Spaniards but that seven names on the passenger list sounded foreign. Flaming wreckage of the plane landed near the village of Montrove, about four miles from the mountain-top airport. There were early reports of survivors, but they apparently arose from confusion in the village.

Black Muslims sentenced

CHRISTIANSTED — Five self-professed Black Muslims, shouting, spitting and cursing in defiance, were sentenced to life imprisonment Monday for last fall's mass murder at a plush St. Croix, Virgin Islands golf course here. U. S. District Judge Warren H. Young handed down the maximum sentences after the defendants, ranging in age from 22 to 26, were convicted of killing eight persons at the Rockefeller-owned Fountain Valley Golf Course. The sentences heightened racial tension on this mostly black U. S. Caribbean island.

State wants money for schools

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania went into court again Monday in a bid to free some $20 million in education funds impounded by the federal government. The states of Washington, Nevada, Illinois and Texas joined Pennsylvania in the suit, which was filed in U. S. District Court in Washington, D.C. Gov. Milton J. Shapp claimed the funds "have been improperly withheld at the directions of President Nixon."

Kennedy, friends injured in crash

NANTUCKET, Mass. (UPI) — A jeep-type auto driven by Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, crashed out of control Monday on Nantucket Island, injuring his brother, David, and two young women companions.

Both women—among seven persons in the car—were reported in serious condition at Cape Cod Hospital.

Police said Joseph Kennedy, 21, would be cited for dangerous and negligent driving. He escaped injury.

David Kennedy, 18, was reported to have suffered a badly sprained back. Officials at Cape Cod Hospital said he was "resting comfortably" Monday night.

A hospital spokesman said "there is no great cause for alarm" about David.

Orthopedic surgeons were hurried to the scene after Kennedy and three other occupants of the auto were flown from Nantucket by a hospital plane.

Mrs. Ethel Kennedy was at the hospital Monday evening, as were Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, and Sargent Shriver, uncles of the two Kennedy boys.

Most seriously injured was Pamela Kelly, 22, Hyannisport, who underwent surgery for a possible spine fracture.

Mary Schaff, 22, Gross Point, Mich., was treated for a fractured pelvis.

Last ditch effort

Bombers blast guerrillas

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — American warplanes flew round-the-clock air strikes through hampering monsoon rains Monday to give guerrillas in the jungles around Phnom Penh a final pounding before the Cambodian bombing halt Wednesday.

A government spokesman said Cambodian officials have been taking part in informal peace talks with Communist leaders, but a tough-talking exiled Prince Norodom Sihanouk said a guerrilla victory "is already practically achieved."

U.S. pilots said they went ahead with Monday's air strikes despite the monsoon, but the blinding rains and low clouds cut into their effectiveness.

The blasts of the American bombs could be heard all day in the capital with the concussions rattling windows and drowning out conversations.

Military sources said the big U.S. B52 bombers concentrated their strikes against suspected Communist troop positions southeast and southwest of the capital. The sources said F111 fighter-bombers dove down and hit suspected guerrilla positions east of Phnom Penh.

Cambodian Information Minister Sum Chhum told a news conference Monday the government was conducting informal talks with the Khmer Rouge, the local Communists.

"There are no formal contacts," he said. "But there are discussions being made by groups on the other side."

In Paris, however, Cambodian guerrilla leader Ieng Sary rejected any negotiations with the "traitors" in Phnom Penh and said his forces were "at the gates of, and even inside, Phnom Penh."

Sum Chhum accused the North

Vietnamese of trying to keep the government from negotiating with the Khmer Rouge. "The Khmer of the other side cannot come forward freely because the North Vietnamese stop them," he said. "Thus there is a conflict between the North Vietnamese and the Khmer Rouge."

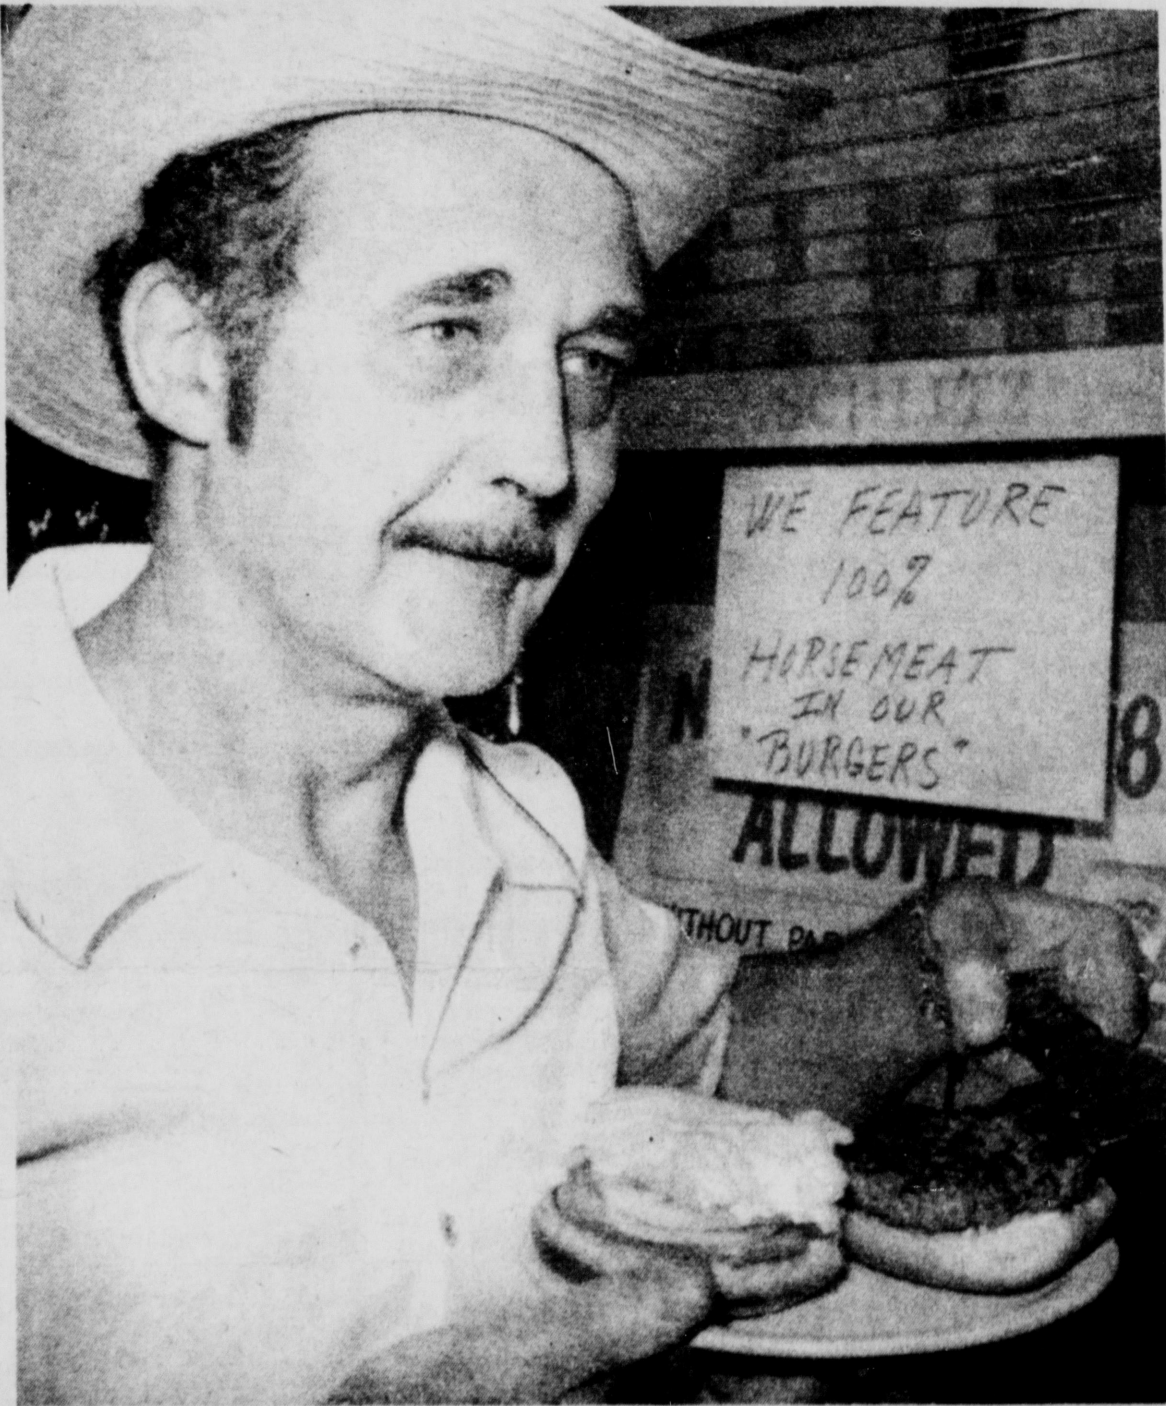

He brushed off recent demands by Sihanouk for the Lon Nol regime to go into exile by saying "our government is the only legal government."

"The president will remain with us," Sum Chhum said. "The members of the cabinet have no idea of leaving."

Sihanouk, vacationing in North Korea, said Sunday at a farewell banquet a guerrilla victory "is already practically achieved" and predicted the "moribund" Lon Nol regime would fall no matter how much American aid it received.

The advancing troops reported little Communist action with only two men wounded in the morning's push. Some military sources speculated the guerrillas were laying low until Wednesday, but would resume their two-month-old offensive against the capital when the bombing comes to an end.

Nixon given dual blow by Cox team

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Watergate prosecution team stepped up its pace Monday, accusing President Nixon of illegally withholding vital criminal evidence on the bugging scandal and launching a second grand jury inquiry into related "dirty tricks."

The twin actions, both in U.S. District Court here, came as Nixon himself was deep in preparations for a public response to the flood of Watergate revelations at Senate hearings, now in recess until mid-September.

The White House indicated Nixon would speak out — his first public statement on Watergate since May 22 — by the end of the week, and no earlier than Wednesday. White House sources said he would make a television speech and release a detailed documentary response to charges against his administration.

Special prosecutor Archibald Cox, in a sternly worded legal brief filed with the court, argued that Nixon had no legal or constitutional right to withhold from the Watergate grand jury tape recordings of nine meetings with key aides that could prove or disprove charges of "gross misconduct" and criminal wrongdoing in the White House.

"The President is not above the law," Cox said in his 67-page brief. "Unlike a monarch, the President is not the sovereign."

Nixon refused last Tuesday to honor a Cox subpoena for the tape recordings — the first subpoena served on a President in 166 years — contending he had the absolute right to withhold confidential communications "in the public interest."

To the contrary, Cox said, the President has "no absolute right to withhold evidence merely on his own say-so," particularly in the Watergate case where the fate of his closest aides and also Nixon's own "political power and future place in history" are at stake.

"The veil of confidentiality ... cannot be used as a cloak when there is substantial reason to believe that serious criminal wrongdoing may have occurred," Cox said.

Oral arguments on Cox's suit to obtain the nine tapes for the Watergate grand jury are scheduled Aug. 23 before Chief U. S. District Judge John J. Sirica. The case is certain to be decided finally by the Supreme Court.

An hour before two top Cox aides filed the brief, Sirica swore in a new 23-member grand jury at Cox's request to consider Watergate "spin-off" cases. He cautioned the 15 women and eight men selected that the complex investigation might well last the full 18 months of a federal grand jury's statutory tenure.

It was expected that this special grand jury would focus initially on the alleged offer by International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. (ITT) in 1971 to help underwrite the 1972 GOP national convention to the tune of $400,000 in exchange for favorable settlement of three major federal antitrust actions then pending against the conglomerate.

Dean involved in Mitchell case

NEW YORK (UPI) — The government Monday named former White House counsel John W. Dean III, star witness at the Watergate hearings, as a co-conspirator but not a defendant in the New York criminal case against former Attorney General John M. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans.

Dean and two others were named by U. S. Attorney Paul Curran in a bill of particulars in U. S. District Court which linked a $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign to "disbursements" to three Watergate figures.

The two former cabinet members are accused of perjury, conspiracy and obstruction of justice along with fugitive financier Robert Vesco and New Jersey politician Harry L. Sears.

They were indicted by a federal grand jury in connection with the contribution by Vesco, made at a time when the financier was under investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The two former cabinet officers are scheduled to go on trial Sept. 11. Vesco has fled the country and is believed in Latin America.

Named along with Dean as co-conspirators Monday were Laurence B. Richardson, former president of Vesco's International Controls Corp., and Howard Cerny, an ICC lawyer.

Attorneys for Mitchell and Stans had demanded the names of other conspirators referred to in the indictment. Dean, Richardson and Cerny do not face any criminal prosecution as the result of the government action.

Bodies found on beach raise sex murders to 27

HOUSTON (UPI) — Deputies searching a beach littered with salt grass and sun bathers unearthed four bodies from shallow graves—two of them nude boys buried together—raising to 27 Monday the toll of youngsters tortured and killed in the nation's worst mass murder in recent history.

Girls in bikinis and mothers with small children on their hips lounged near the sea as deputies from two counties with 45-caliber pistols strapped to their hips sweated their white shirts dark in the sun.

George Leger, a local truck driver, probed the beach with a stick Sunday night and found a soft spot. The next morning he led deputies to the first grave.

"When I brought the stick up, it had a bad odor," Leger said. The first body was exhumed while fog still shrouded the sand.

The next body came later in the morning from a grave two miles down the beach. Deputies riding a road grader spotted a patch of sand turned black by decomposing bodies. The 26th and 27th bodies were uncovered by deputies digging with shovels. The last two bodies had been tied in the same plastic bag head to foot. Both were nude.

"All people are going to die some day," said Chambers County Sheriff Louis Otter, "but most people want somebody to come and say, you know, 'He was a good kid' or 'a pretty good kid' as they stand around that resting place. These kids didn't get that chance."

The worst previous mass murders in the United States this century were discovered, ironically, at the same time some of the Texas boys were being enticed off the streets, sexually assaulted and killed. In 1971, the bodies of 25 farm hands were found buried along the Feather River in Northern California. Juan V. Corona, a migrant labor contractor, is serving a life prison term for those slayings.

Otter said the 27 victims found buried at the beach, in an East Texas piney wood and in a Houston boat shed, might be all the police will recover.

"Unless we get some better information, we're possibly going to pull off," the search Tuesday, said Otter.

Two teen-agers — Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, and David Owen Brooks, 18—have confessed to police they were involved in the sex and sadism spree with a homosexual friend, Dean Allen Corli, 33. Both have been charged with murder.

Most of the dead youths apparently came from the Heights area of Houston and Police Chief Herman Short Monday defended his department from criticism that the missing youths were not sought.

Prices increase as freeze ends

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's second price freeze ended for most of the economy Monday—almost two years to the day after he imposed the first one—and some prices immediately began to climb, with more increases expected in the coming weeks under Phase IV.

Two automobile manufacturers, Chrysler and American Motors already were seeking permission from the government to increase prices and one steel firm, Armco, announced it was reinstating price hikes averaging 5 per cent on sheet steel products which were disallowed by the freeze.

Spokesmen said Ford and General Motors were expected to file price increase applications in the near future.

The two-month freeze ended at midnight Sunday for all of the economy except beef and petroleum. The tough Phase IV regulations permit businessmen to pass along to consumers only their added costs, with no price increases allowed for added profits.

Firms with annual sales of less than $100 million could start marking up their prices Monday. Under the Cost of Living Council (CLC) regulations, they can increase prices of individual items as much as 10 per cent plus added costs, but overall their price increases cannot exceed their increased costs.

Firms with sales of at least $100 million a year must give 30 days notice on any price increases and get approval from the council.

The White House stuck by its guns on its extension of the freeze on beef prices until Sept. 12, despite heavy pressure by the cattle industry and grumbling by beef-short consumers to end it earlier.

The freeze on petroleum products was extended one week to Aug. 19 in a move by the administration to prevent a sudden price explosion across the entire economy.

Administration officials conceded that prices would start going up Monday as the freeze was lifted, but they declined to speculate on how much or how fast they would rise, or when or where they would start to level off.

Poconos' balloonist won't give up flight to Europe

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bob Sparks, whose attempt to float to Europe in a balloon ended in the chilly Atlantic last Thursday, said Monday he would try again next summer. "Some one should take a balloon to Europe," the 37-year-old entertainment director at Tamiment resort in the Poconos told a news conference. "I want it to be me."

Sparks and his "Yankee Zephyr I" lifted off at Bar Harbor, Maine, last Thursday. Almost 24 hours later he ditched in the Atlantic, 45 miles northeast of Newfoundland. The balloon had limped along for five hours after a severe thunderstorm.

"I went to sleep at 8:25 p.m.," Sparks said. "And about an hour later I woke up—I thought I heard a jet plane, a fighter—and I jumped to get my parachute. Then I looked around and I was surrounded by lightning and all I could hear was thunder. A bolt of lightning came through and all I could think was 'don't say anything and it will go away.'"

Sparks said he spent the next half hour trying to keep the giant helium balloon airborne.

"I didn't give a Mayday (the international distress signal) until I was sure I couldn't make it to Europe," he said.

After ditching in the ocean, Sparks cut the balloon loose. It was last seen heading toward Greenland.

Sparks was rescued by a Canadian Coast Guard cutter.

"I was scared," he said.

Sparks said he would call his balloon for next summer's flight "Yankee Zephyr II."

"I want to be first," he said. "Ballooning means a lot to me."

There have been three other unsuccessful attempts to cross the Atlantic.

Music session popular 'vacation'

By JEFF WIDMER

DELAWARE WATER GAP
— One hundred seventy-five high school and college students raise their music and launch into Felix Mendelssohn's "Heleg."

Filling one side of the Shawnee Press's rehearsal hall, the students of Fred Waring's choral workshop sing a cappella, then with bass, drums and piano, and finally break for supper.

The students and choral directors, who attend adult workshops, come from all over the country to work with the professional choral directors, composers and arrangers assembled by Fred Waring every summer.

"The basic idea of the workshop," Peter T. Kiefer, managing director, said, "is to get professional people together with non-professionals."

Waring, his three directors and his staff of instructors strive to teach the many short cuts and techniques they have acquired in their careers.

Adult workshops run during the first and last week of July. High school, college, church and other choral directors study all facets of conducting and staging.

The two-week youth workshops, which run from July 8-20 and July 29-August 10, give students a taste of professional music life.

Classes begin at 9 a.m. and run until 9:30 p.m. daily. The students, averaging 16 to 17 years of age, study harmony, theory, diction and conducting among other things.

'Let's end on key'

Dr. John Raymond directs 175 youngsters in one of the sessions of the two-week Fred Waring Music Workshops held each summer in Delaware Water Gap. The workshops draw students and teachers from all over the United States.

The Pennsylvanians and the Waring Blenders, college students attending on workshop scholarships, perform for the classes.

"They are a living example," Kiefer said, "of all the techniques we teach. They are also an inspiration to the students."

Other courses cover microphone techniques, staging and lighting, composition and arranging.

Dr. John Raymond stops his group many times, and challenges them to try new ways to sing their material. "Let's try to end on key," he suggests as they finish the a cappella piece. When the piano indicates their success at the end of a second try, the chorus bursts into applause.

Raymond agreed that the group is enthusiastic. "Students get here what they don't get elsewhere," he said after the group had gone to supper. "They have an opportunity to sing every form and type of music, from bossa nova to jazz to show tunes."

Raymond said the Waring Workshop teaches the modern concept of choral singing — that of incorporating into liturgical texts the rhythms of jazz and other popular forms.

"The students," Raymond continued, "get a well-rounded musical education. They can now decide what form of music they want to go into."

Kiefer added, "I don't think there is anywhere in the world where kids can go through this experience and get so much attention."

Six students stood outside the rehearsal hall, talking about the workshop. Jim, who came from Columbus, Ohio for his second year, likes the program. "But when they say workshop," he said, "they mean work."

He heard about the sessions from his high school choral director. "Our director is really gung ho," he said. "He takes 30 students every year. He was once a student here."

Though all agreed that singing eight hours a day was more than they had ever done before, they are learning and enjoying.

"It improves your sight singing," one student said, "when they just give you the music and say, 'sing.'"

"It's hard to tell," another said, "whether you're learning while you're learning. I think I'm learning something."

All had nothing but praise for Waring, his staff, their attitudes and methods. Several mentioned that one of their instructors, Harry Simone, arranged the song he taught them.

"Everything culminates," Kiefer said later, "in the full-scale professional concert they gave on Aug. 9." The concert, staged around the pool at the Shawnee Country Club, was open to the public.

"We hope we've given them a little extra pleasure in life," he said as he glanced at the students rehearsing. "Without music," he added, "the world would be a dead spot."

Fire company aid

By JOHN L. MOORE
Harrisburg News Service
Harrisburg Bureau

Pennsylvania Insurance Commissioner Herbert S. Denenberg is planning a move designed to give the state rural fire companies some extra cash.

The state imposes a two percent tax on fire insurance premiums collected by out-of-state insurance companies which insure Pennsylvania property holders.

This tax is funneled by the state to Pennsylvania fire departments which use the money for their firemen's relief or pension funds. But fire organizations based in large communities have been getting the lion's share because of a quirk in the way insurance companies write their policies.

Insurance agents have been recording the mailing address of insured properties, and not the name of the municipality where the property is located.

Thus the state has been forwarding the revenue to the fire departments of the town identified by the post office, although in many cases the properties are actually protected by fire organizations located in a rural township served by a city post office.

Denenberg's move will change all this by requiring the insurance companies to identify the municipality where the property is situated.

"The fire fighting company that protects a piece of property should receive the premium tax from it," Denenberg declares.

Actually, the idea is not new with Denenberg, and two lawmakers are sponsoring legislation in the Pennsylvania General Assembly to accomplish the same thing.

And both greeted news of Denenberg's announcement with enthusiasm.

"Fine," said Rep. Russell Kowalshyn, D-Northampton who put in legislation to do this at the request of the Monroe County Firemen's Association. "Many of us were disappointed that this had not been done previously. We all realized the large municipalities were against an equitable system because it was to their advantage."

Kowalshyn said the existing procedure "penalizes the rural areas."

"I'm delighted," said Sen. Franklin L. Kury, D-Sunbury, "it's a much fairer way to distribute the funds."

Kury introduced legislation to accomplish the change after fireman from Coal Township in Northumberland County complained that the city of Shamokin — whose post office services the township — was getting all the premium tax on Coal Township property.

A spokesman for Denenberg conceded that a future insurance commissioner could always give the advantage back to the city-based fire organizations, and conceded that legislation is tougher to change than a departmental rule.

"I still think we need the bill," Kury said. Kury introduced two bills to bring about the change, and the Senate has passed one of them.

The Senator said several hundred thousand dollars were involved throughout the state.

A new law: A new state law may be enacted because George A. Mathewson couldn't run for school board in Mercer County this year.

Mathewson thought he was a candidate for the Sharpville Area School Board, but his name never got on the ballot because someone apparently lost his nominating petition.

Rep. Roy W. Wilt, a Mercer legislator who does not know Mathewson, wants to prevent something like this from recurring and is sponsoring legislation to require election officials to give candidates official receipts when they file nominating petitions.

A little truth goes long way

All that probing into government secrecy down in Washington has revealed one thing that bothers us: Officials feel if the true story were told — about that bombing in Cambodia, for example — the public might not like it.

Well, gee — if the public doesn't like it, maybe we ought not to do it. Or don't the desires of the people matter any more?

Certainly there are some courses of action that must on occasion be taken that aren't likely to be the most popular directions that could be found. But we have enough confidence in the citizens of this nation to think that, if they were told the truth and persuaded of the need to do one thing or another, they would respond intelligently.

Take the bombing in Cambodia. Had the government laid it on the line, the response might well have been, "well, it's necessary to preserve the government there, so let's do it." And that would have made of a clandestine operation a legal campaign.

On the other hand, the verdict might have been, "we don't like it at all; let's pull out." We would have, and the end result would have been no worse than that which is going to happen Wednesday, when the bombing stops: The government of Lon Nol is going to sink beneath the combined weight of opposition troops and general citizen apathy.

As it is, we have a double blot on our national record. We have been exposed as a nation of secretive war-makers and we are not about to leave a favored government wallow in a war it cannot win.

Neither of these eventualities need have resulted from our involvement in Cambodia. Little of the questioning now going on in our capital need have been initiated. All it would have taken is a dose of truth — truth in government and truth in those officials who can never seem to admit they serve not a government or administration, but the people of the United States.

Land of taxes

Pennsylvania is the "land of taxes," according to some of those bumper stickers that weave in and out of traffic on our tax-built highways.

Many of those bumper stickers are facetious, deliberate efforts to induce a smile on the face of passersby. This one, however, comes uncomfortably close to the truth.

Pennsylvania is not the state with the highest taxes, nor does it have the most. But it is right up there with any of the others.

There are by an actual count taken by the state's Chamber of Commerce, 30 different taxes collected by the Commonwealth itself, and this does not count taxes that are assessed only by and payable only to our local governments, county, municipality or school district.

It does not, in other words, count the taxes that hit us hardest and bring out the greatest objection — the real estate tax, as an example, is not a state tax; it goes to our local governments only. And yet it is the one that is most onerous.

Not all of those 30 state taxes apply to everyone.

There are corporate net income taxes, corporation taxes, franchise taxes and franchise taxes that apply only to "foreign" corporations, i. e., those from out-of-state.

For what it may be worth there are 13 different business taxes the Commonwealth collects. There are also, of course, the two big ones which we pay directly, the sales and the personal income taxes.

The Commonwealth gets tax revenue in six different levies upon automobiles and trucks, in three ways from liquor or malt beverages and it gets nine mills for every cigarette that is sold.

Thirty state taxes may not be 30 too many, for the state government, too, must have revenue to exist. But in these days of inflation, when no tax is subject to any kind of control, they are far, far too many.

Come out, Dick Nixon

If the account of the Nixon tapes given by H. R. Haldeman before the Ervin committee is accurate, the two important tapes Haldeman has listened to bear out the President's claim of innocence in the Watergate affair. Why then not release to the Ervin committee or some other body the relevant portions, close out the whole Watergate affair, and get on with the practical affairs of the nation?

The amazing answer being put about by White House aides is that Nixon's refusal to do this is not based primarily on the claim of Executive privilege or separation of powers, this being merely the avowed rationale. No, they say, even though the tapes do support Nixon's version they are being held back because, intertwined with talk pertinent to Watergate, are some "blunt" political judgments and "language" which Nixon believes would "damage the office of the Presidency."

People would be shocked and disillusioned, that is, if they heard Nixon say what he really thought about assorted politicians or if a series of earthy expressions passed his lips. I don't know, some people might be shocked, but my own feeling is that this would raise Nixon to new heights of popularity and gain Nixon an affection he has never been able to arouse.

Private man

Richard Nixon in his own way shares with Lyndon Johnson a peculiar characteristic. There exists a huge gap between the private and the public man. With a small group of people he knows, Nixon is direct, realistic, humorous, and often startlingly candid. He swears. He uses vivid imagery. He is frequently scatological.

In public an amazing transformation occurs. An oppressive respectability settles over the fellow. He becomes almost prim. He walks without swinging his arms. His speeches are full of stale protestations of virtue. He seems to think that everyone expects the President — as distinguished from Dick Nixon — to be some sort of civics book, a Sunday school paragon.

Of course, a gap usually does exist between a man's public and his private face. John F. Kennedy was not in reality the spartan idealist of the public presentation. He was rather indolent and in indifferent health, he was cynical, and as everyone knows he was lecherous. He was not very literary, despite all those quotations. When he was not preoccupied with some starlet, he liked to shoot the breeze with his old Navy buddies.

But in Nixon, the gap is extreme, and, in contrast to Kennedy, the public artifact is a liability. Kennedy put on a better act.

Young dislike pretense

One of the few good things to come out of the mood of the 1960s was an impatience with pretense. The gap was narrowed between the real self and the social one. The "kids" have plenty of faults, but their impatience with humbug is not one of them, and I think it has spread elsewhere in the society.

If Nixon is heard to utter a few four-letter words, the Oval Office will not turn into a pumpkin, and he will not be run out of town. Instead, people will begin to think he's human. After all, one of the things people liked about Harry Truman was his directness, his willingness to be himself. They did not hold it against him when he said what he thought or even when he told off that music critic in earthy terms. If the White House tapes reveal Nixon as he actually is and as his close associates see him to be on a daily basis, this will be one of the best things that has ever happened to him.

Bald ad hair-raising fraud

Are hormone creams ever of any value for baldness? I spent $40 after reading about it in a pulp magazine.

I think I was a sucker. Nothing has happened.

Mr. P.F.S., Wash., D.C.

Dear Mr. S.:

If a "sucker" is one who falls into the tempting trap of fraudulent advertising then, Mr. S., you are indeed one.

It took 40 good, hard-earned dollars for you to find out that creams, lotions and ointments are not the answer to the massive problem of pattern baldness.

I would venture to say that the cream you purchased probably did not contain any of the male sex hormone, or testosterone. For there are many legal statutes against incorporating hormones in over-the-counter non-prescription cosmetics and ointments.

Scientific studies were once made seeking the value of hormones for regrowth of hair. The original enthusiasm raised the hopes, but not the hair of the balding.

Male sex hormones, vigorously rubbed into the scalp, are absorbed, and occasionally produce unusual side effects. Therefore, they should never be used without the specific advice of a doctor.

"Miracle" cures of all kinds are, at best, exploitative. If there were any proven value for the extravagant claims that are so openly advertised, the public should realize that all doctors would know their advantages and use them judiciously.

Are glycerin suppositories dangerous for constipation?

Mr. O.G., Tex.

Dear Mr. G.:

These suppositories are probably the least hazardous of all the methods of relieving constipation. Long dependence on laxatives, suppositories and enemas are habits that usually can be broken by developing a new habit of drinking 8 glasses of water a day. Before trying it, be sure it has your doctor's approval.

A blood clot formed in my leg and has caused me untold trouble.

What is the cause of a clot like this?

Miss G.R., Ohio

Dear Miss R.:

The fact that blood flows through the arteries and veins freely and uninterrupted is one of the wonders of our body.

The inner lining of blood vessels is thin and smooth. If this lining is injured, or inflamed, small deposits collect at the point of irritation, Platelets, and other components of the blood pile up, and a clot thrombus begins to form.

A slight injury, which may have gone unnoticed, may be responsible. In susceptible people, tobacco may be a cause.

Tortuous, twisting blood vessels and varicose veins may also play a role in the formation of clots.

When a clot is formed, there is a damming back of the blood, and swelling of the surrounding tissue may result.

With bed rest and the drugs that are now available, these clots can be absorbed, and the vessels returned to their normal state.

Letters to the Editor

Program in poor taste

Editor, The Record:

Publisher William Randolph Hearst was wont to say that anyone could make a mistake but only a fool would make the same mistake twice.

The showing of the abortion sequences of Maud on CBS - TV was a mistake in that it offended a large segment of the buying public. The reaction of many clerics was predictably negative for reasons of morality.

More important from the pocketbook standpoint, large numbers of other people also found these segments repulsive: some on moral grounds, some because they felt the right to life guaranteed by the Constitution applies to living fetuses, some because the comedic treatment of such serious subject was in poor taste.

Some, particularly the elderly, may have recalled Pastor Niemöller's reflection during the Nazi regime in Germany: "When they came to take away the Catholics, I did not complain because I was not a Catholic. When they came to take away the trade unionists, I did not complain because I was not a trade unionist. When finally they came to take me away, there was no one left to complain." Abortion and euthanasia are both the killing of the unwanted.

CBS is setting out to prove it is a corporate fool by rescheduling these episodes during the next two weeks. Though letters of complaint should be written (CBS, 51 W. 52 St., New York, N.Y. 10019 & W.D.A.U., 100 W. 34th Ave., Scranton, Pa., 18510), most likely John Schneider, president of CBS, sitting atop his private Mt. Sinai, will be impervious to them.

However, he will not be impervious to letters written to the presidents of companies whose products are sponsored by CBS. The names and addresses of these will be available to those who feel Schneider's "Public be damned" attitude is not consistent with effective advertising.

Hospital deserves praise

Editor, The Record:

I heartily agree with Mrs. Diane Wenger, whose letter of appreciation for the high quality of medical care at the General Hospital of Monroe County was published Aug. 4.

I have just left the hospital as a patient. I wonder whether Monroe Countians, taken as a group, have any realistic idea as to how superior their hospital is. With perhaps more than just a fair degree of experience to go on, some here, more elsewhere, I'd like to say this:

Nowhere, ever, have I seen a hospital kept more immaculately clean, the medical and surgical staffs, some members of which I have come to know as friends over the years, are both competent and dedicated; the nursing staff, - with a very special, grateful acknowledgment to that elite unit who work in Coronary Care Unit - and the ancillary groups of auxiliaries, including the Gray Ladies, constitute a corps of which any hospital would be proud . . . and darn lucky to get.

By now, my point, like Mrs. Wenger's, should be pretty clear: We are more fortunate than we know or realize, until we come to it first - hand, that we have available in time of need a hospital and a staff of the caliber of the General Hospital of Monroe County.

Protect us from trucks

Editor, The Record:

I was horrified the other night when my husband and I were coming home from Stroudsburg. We were turning left off North Second Street to cross the inter - boro bridge when a tractor - trailer came barreling down Lower Main Street right behind us, doing I'm sure more than the speed limit, and chased us across the bridge.

The speed limit on North Courtland Street is 35 miles per hour. We had to do 45, and the truck was still on our tail. We made a left turn onto a side street and he showed no intention of slowing down. Thank God we didn't have to stop before we turned!

Minutes later my husband was called to a fire. There was our friend the policeman on my husband's tail all the way to the fire station.

It's not a very good feeling to know there is no police protection against trucks tailgating cars. Goodness knows if a policeman were around, we would have been pulled off the road, because WE were doing more than the speed limit - not the truck.

After all, the truck can push cars, but cars can't push trucks. I think it's about time something was done to tractor trailers tailgating on our town roads and on Rte. 209, before more people are killed or scared half out of their wits.

Praise to Margaret E

Editor, The Record:

I call your attention to a most unusual club of women, the Margaret E Club. This should be named "The Philanthropists Club" for the work it does.

They organized to help all handicapped people in the county. This they have done in the most unusual ways, from Easter baskets to window drapes; from bibs to bed socks; from playing Easter Bunny to Santa Claus; from individual to institutional help; helping from one to dozens.

This club considers no job too large or too small, although all are working women with homes to care for. Mrs. Vi Bonser is president and Mrs. Cora Williams past president.

They and all members should receive a great deal of praise for their humane and benevolent work for the unfortunate of our county.

Government no help

WASHINGTON — Despite the gasoline shortage and President Nixon's attempt to reduce government fuel consumption by seven per cent, government cars will be using more gas than ever in the year ahead.

The government is also continuing to give away gasoline by the millions of barrels to foreign nations. Documents reveal that in fiscal years 1971 and 1972, the Defense Department gave foreign nations $30 million in grants to purchase 5.1 million barrels of petroleum. The program is continuing.

The General Services Administration has admitted to Rep. Ben Rosenthal, D-N.Y., meanwhile, that government autos were allowed to use 34 million more gallons of gasoline in 1973 than in 1972.

GSA projects an increase of 30 million gallons for fiscal year 1974. Since fiscal year 1971, federal vehicles have increased their consumption of gas 40 per cent.

Falcon Foolishness: Earlier this year the pilot of a sleek Lear jet over Georgia suddenly saw a flock of cowbirds dead ahead. "We don't believe we're gonna make it," he shouted to the tower. Instantly later, the jet dove into the roof of an apartment house, killing the plane's seven occupants.

To prevent such disasters, the Federal Aviation Administration uses such things as carbide cannons for frightening birds away. But the birds sit nonchalantly on the cannon, take a few lazy flaps when they hear the activator buzz, then settle back down on the gun barrel after the boom.

The FAA's safety experts know the cannon doesn't work. Nor does anything else. Now, they're studying a novel, new scheme drawn up by one of America's leading falconers.

He is retired Air Force Lt. Col. Richard Graham of Colorado Springs, Colo., who through a Spanish colleague has already tested his ideas on the U.S. Air Force field outside Madrid, Spain.

Birds panic

In simplest terms, Graham's falcons will fly up to bedevil any flocks of birds that venture near the airports. So panicked are most birds by the peregrine falcons that they flee at the mere sight.

Conservationists like the idea for two reasons. It would build up the dwindling numbers of the beautiful falcons. And the number of birds killed by falcons would be minuscule compared to the mass slaughter of birds recommended by some airport safety men.

Graham's supporters in the FAA would like to test the peregrines at one of several airports, such as busy Newark, which are plagued with the threat of bird-plane collisions.

But the retired colonel, despite encouragement from FAA and support from congressmen and conservationists, has been harassed for two years about his falcons by the Interior Department's fish and wildlife officials.

Police raid

Over a year after Graham brought in 10 peregrine falcons from Spain for breeding, Colorado game police and federal wildlife agents raided his home and grabbed his birds. Graham was on a conservation mission to Greenland at the time. The raiders' threats sent Mrs. Graham to the hospital in a state of collapse. The birds were returned only because their lives were endangered away from Graham's own meticulous care.

Now Customs is trying to assess Graham $7,500 for the birds. And Assistant Interior Secretary Nathaniel Reed is trying to fine him $4,000 for bringing in the birds even though Graham reported their arrival to Customs.

Worse, officials in Reed's office have started a scandalous whispering campaign against the former Air Force hero who won the Distinguished Flying Cross and 13 air medals.

Reed's wildlife enforcement chief, Clark Bavin, accused Graham of "smuggling" in the birds. When he learned we planned to quote him, he protested he did not mean it and conceded later that Graham had notified Customs he was bringing in the birds.

"Some of these people," said Graham wryly, "have a police mentality. They said 'frog' and I didn't jump (so) they made a Gestapo raid on my home. They didn't think one individual would fight."

Voice of Broadway

By Jack O'Brian

NEW YORK — John Gavin has come East to do a stint in Broadway's hit "Seesaw" ... He came from Hollywood where he has starred in motion pictures for 16 years ... In addition to his acting chores he's also president of the Screen Actors Guild ... John likes to use an old Navy expression for his time spent here ... he's "flying the flag in New York" ... We talked to him backstage at the Mark Hellinger Theater after one of his fine performances in "Seesaw" ...

"People ask me, being a native Californian, how can I take New York?" reports John. "It's because I'm doing something I love! Also, New York is always interesting and, believe it or not, it's where the work is for me and most of my colleagues. I'm delighted to be in 'Seesaw'—I get to sing and dance eight time a week to Cy Coleman and Dorothy Fields numbers plus the added benefit of working with Michele Lee and Tommy Tune every night—which is a lot of fun.

"I could talk for hours about our director Michael Bennett, and his talent, but let me say that everybody in the show is outstanding and fun to work with. And like I say, yours truly gets to sing and dance. People come up to me on the street and say 'I didn't know you had it in you.'"

"I'm a newcomer to Broadway, but not to musicals. I'm a believer in learning one's craft, and over the past few years I've done musicals in summer stock like 'The Fantasticks.' (You should have heard my knees knock the first time I had to sing in front of a live audience! I knew I was going to open my mouth, but I wasn't sure what was going to come out!)

"Being in New York keeps me hopping, which is what I like. I'm 'flying the flag' for the Screen Actors Guild during day and 'Seesaw' takes up the evenings. It often gets a little tiring, but it forces you to keep in trim."

"I also spend a good deal of time trying to explain that SAG is not the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, which is responsible for the Academy Awards. I get a lot of letters with suggestions for next year's Oscarcasts, and some even bawl me out! I just have my secretary get them over to Dan Taradash, who is the president of the Academy, as fast as she can!"

"The public may think that Hollywood is synonymous with screen acting and that the SAG is only a West Coast operation. We are very, very much a national organization. We are a union for screen actors, and as you know actors are making movies, TV movies and commercials — all over the country."

"Did you know that theatrical motion pictures provide about $22 million in revenues per year, that TV films provide $38 million, and that commercials provide us with an excess of $62 million?"

"Those commercials which take such little time to be shown on your TV set provide over 50 per cent of our revenues, and about three-quarters of all these commercials are made under our jurisdiction in the New York area. The New York local of SAG has a membership of 9,000, which is more than we had in the 'home port' of Hollywood as recently as 1958."

"The widely publicized idea that the average actor is rolling in wealth and that for him to seek to improve his working conditions was the basest ingratitude is a fiction. When the Guild was formed in 1933, a motion picture was lucky to get as much as $15 for a long day's work, and the unregulated working hours were even worse than the pay."

"In 1935 the Guild gained economic strength by affiliating with the American Federation of Labor and on May 9, 1937, the members packed Hollywood Legion Stadium and announced they were ready to strike for recognition of their union. They won their point without a strike."

"Since then, successive contracts have brought the Guild members a lot of benefits."

Ann Landers

Shadow boxer

Dear Ann Landers: I was interested in the letters from the wives of snorers. I should be so lucky. My husband is a hinner.

Kevin and I have been married 16 years and he insists on one bed. He has always been a restless sleeper but in the last few years he has gotten worse. From time to time I have suggested twin beds. His answer is always the same. "Over my dead body." Once I answered, "Don't tempt me." He gave me a dirty look and I haven't mentioned twin beds since.

In the last few months Kevin has given me two black eyes and a nosebleed. When I wake him up it's news to him. He doesn't know a thing.

This is his explanation: When he was a kid in South Boston he used to sleep with his brother Mike. They fought all the time. (They still do.) When Kevin punches me he says he is dreaming about his childhood and he thinks he is hitting Mike. Does this make any sense to you?

Black And Blue

Dear B. and B.: After 16 years I would hope that your husband doesn't think he is still sleeping with his brother. Dreams often go back to early childhood and it may well be that Kevin is reliving his youth. You are generous to give him the benefit of the doubt. He should be equally generous and buy you twin beds for your birthday or anniversary, whichever comes first.

Dear Ann Landers: I see a lot of people are mad at you because you advocate the "forgive and forget" policy for certain unfaithful husbands.

Unfortunately, too few people understand the true nature of forgiveness. It doesn't mean the offender goes free. He often suffers a great deal. No man lives who has not made a mistake. We all know the warmth that fills our hearts and the deep sense of gratitude when we have behaved badly and are forgiven.

Forgiveness can spell the difference between a life of bitterness and hate and a life of compassion and understanding. Being forgiven gives us the magnanimity to forgive those who wrong us. Your column teaches this beautiful generosity of the spirit and I, for one, want to thank you for it.

Been There Myself

Dear B. T.: We have all been there — we'll only admit it. Forgiveness can be the most priceless gift of all, yet it costs nothing. Thank you for writing.

Forget him

NO CALL: (Q.) For a dance, my girl friend fixed me up with her boy friend's roommate. He is two years older than I am, and out of school, but I like him.

About a week after the dance, he asked me out again. We went to a party and then to his apartment. The other boy wasn't there.

We made out a little and then he wanted to go all the way. I had never been asked to do that before, and I didn't know whether to or not. So I said no.

We made out some more and he took me home. He said he would call me the next day, but he didn't. That was more than a month ago. I just can't get him out of my mind. Please tell me how to get him back again.

Hurting in Pennsylvania

(A.) Countless girls have had your experience. The boy was not interested in you personally — he was just hunting sex. He was not successful with you, so he is now hunting elsewhere.

He did not plan to call you again. He said he would merely to avoid any trouble getting away from you.

You have learned one important fact about one kind of boys. Be thankful that the lesson was relatively inexpensive. It could have cost you much more.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

LEO

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)

Persons in your business or job area may seem to be rather demanding, but be cooperative. They have their reasons.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — A friend may want to discuss investments with you. Better not! This is not a good day for venturing.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Mercury somewhat adverse. Your judgment clouded by emotionalism. Do not make any important decisions for at least 48 hours.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Lunar influences highly inspirational. Unusual ideas could spark a brand new approach in career matters.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — A good day for starting or developing new business associations, but take the initiative before noon. Not much cooperation later.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — A productive day for those engaged in highly creative activities. Some of your ideas may need revision before they become practical, however.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Some adverse influences especially as related to financial affairs. Not a day for taking any chances at all with present assets.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — This could be a somewhat erratic day unless you steer a steady course. Above all, avoid discussions which could upset associates.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Your intuition sharp now. You're thinking along the right lines. And don't worry. You'll get the backing you need to carry out plans.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Saturn in excellent aspect. A bit of daring could pay off now. Don't hesitate to try unique ideas, methods.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Normally, you are not easily "conned," but keep especially alert now or you could fall for some slick salesmanship.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Your intuition especially sharp now—especially in financial matters. An early morning decision in this connection will prove correct.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a fine intellect, great dignity and a truly regal personality. Properly educated and living on the higher plane, you would be well suited to a position of authority and leadership. You make canny judgments through a composite of knowledge and instinct; are original and foresighted in your thinking. You have excellent business acumen and are usually a smart speculator. In fact, your gift for handling finances should make you materially successful, no matter what career you choose. Fields in which you should shine: music, writing, the law, science or salesmanship. Birthdate of: John Galesworthy and Sir Walter Besant, authors.

The bidding:

South West North East
1♥ Pass 2♦ Pass

Opening lead — ten of spades.

A careful declarer never puts all his eggs into one basket when there's a better way of managing his assets.

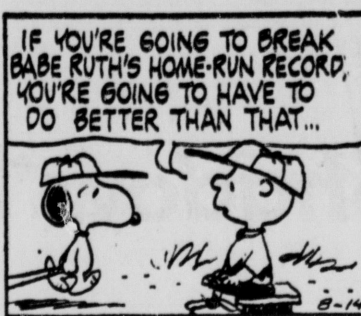

Consider this deal where South won the spade lead with the ace, drew trumps, cashed the king of diamonds, crossed to dummy with a club to the ace on which East's king fell, cashed the ace of diamonds and led a club.

tricks and went down one. It is true that he would have made the slam had he found the clubs divided 2-2 or West with the singleton king or queen. In fact, the odds heavily favored losing only one club trick, and to that extent declarer was unlucky to go down.

But even so, the fact remains that South did not play the hand to the hilt. After winning the ace of spades, he should have led a diamond to the king, a heart to the ten, and cashed the ace of diamonds, discarding a club.

When he then ruffed a diamond, declarer would have learned that the suit was divided 4-3 and that the twelfth trick was now 100 per cent certain. He would ruff the king of spades in dummy, with a club and discard another club on dummy's fifth diamond. His only loser would be a club.

By adopting this method of play, South would have kept intact his chances of a favorable club division if it developed that the diamonds were divided 5-2 making allowance for a favorable diamond division. South would have put his chances into two baskets instead of one.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

The present plight of the comic strip character who never had his name in the newspaper is not one to move the heart of anyone who ever worked on a newspaper. It's the easiest thing in the world. Just speak up at a council meeting, write a letter to the editor, or crumple a fender on Main St. as he'll probably find out in later episodes.

But I still am impressed when somebody has a book published — with hard covers and pleasing lay-out, a book can be around for years and years — and with a permanent kind of content can outlast us all; instead of being, like a newspaper, used to wrap up the garbage the next day.

And when that book has been written not only by somebody I know but by a member of the family, I'm really impressed. So when the book by my nephew, Jon Sams, "Reflections of a Fishing Parson," came out, I read it all in one gulp.

With laughter or nostalgic tears for the incidents in which I shared, including a family celebration of the Eucharist in which the bread was literally broken from a home baked loaf and the broken family circle for that brief time seemed complete once more.

And with the sort of astonishment one generation always feels when the next generation comes up with ideas and knowledge that we never told them.

Somehow we sort of think of ourselves as being the fount from which all knowledge flows and when they outstrip us we keep being surprised every time.

Patricia Lancaster weds in Wind Gap

WIND GAP — Miss Patricia Lancaster and Michael Jon Krout were united in marriage in a candlelight ceremony on Saturday, Aug. 18, at the Hope United Church of Christ in Wind Gap.

The officiating clergymen were Rev. John Truitt, Rev. Barry Galley and Rev. Forrest Miller. Music was presented by Steve Wilson, organist and Robert Ealey, soloist.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. William R. Lancaster of 128 Constitution Avenue, Wind Gap, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Krout of Locke Heights, R.D. 2, Bangor.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory organza gown trimmed with Cluny lace and purple satin ribbon. It was designed with a high neckline and lantern sleeves. There were buttons on the front of the gown with a tucked bodice and skirt with laced-edged hemline and attached chapel length train. The bride completed her outfit with a picture hat in matching lace and blusher. She carried an ivory organza parasol trimmed with lavender and pink roses surrounded by baby's breath.

Mrs. Judy Galley of Easton was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Linda Kern of Easton, Mrs. Barbara Reiner Jr. of Lansdale and Miss Brenda Dobes of Wind Gap. Cousin of the bride, Renee Rinehart of Bath was junior bridesmaid and Miss Sherri Lambert of Bangor was flower girl.

The attendants were dressed in lavender printed organza gowns with high ruffle necklines and bodices, short puffy sleeves, flounced hemlines and pink streamers at the fitted waistlines. Their headpieces were pink bows that matched the bows on the gowns. They carried pink organza parasols trimmed with pink carnations.

George Wilhelm Jr. of East Bangor was best man. Ushers included Karl Krout, brother of the bridegroom, of Saylorburg, Terry Wagner of Locke Heights, Bangor, and Donald Lancaster, brother of the bride, of Gilbert. Junior usher was Scott Lancaster, brother of the bride, of Wind Gap.

Ring bearers were Frederick Lancaster III, cousin of the bride, of Avona Heights, Easton, and Mark Krout, nephew of the bridegroom, of Saylorburg.

A reception was held at the Eagles Home, Route 115, Easton, Pennsylvania. The couple left on a trip to Rehoboth Beach, Delaware. They will reside at North Delaware Drive, R.D. 1, Easton, Pa.

Mr. Krout graduated from Bangor Area Senior High School and East Stroudsburg State College where he received a B.S. degree in Health Education, and is presently doing his graduate work at the same institution. She is employed as a health and physical education teacher in the Bethlehem Area School District.

Kr. Krout graduated from Bangor Area Senior High School and Williamsport Area Community College and is attending Northampton Area County Community College. He is employed by Bethlehem Steel Corp.

STROUDSBURG — Many women spend more money than they need to in order to keep their houses clean. That's because they buy expensive housecleaning products they don't need. Why not make use of lower cost cleaning products you probably already have and which work just as well?

Money savers

For house cleaning

There are many cleaning tricks that make use of common household products sitting on your shelves. For example, ammonia diluted in water can be used to clean soiled upholstery and carpets, windows, mirrors and glassware, plastic shower curtains and as a wax remover for non-wood floors.

You can clean your oven by placing a saucer filled with undiluted ammonia in a cool oven. Leave it in overnight with the oven door closed. The next day, you can remove the grease with a cloth dampened in a solution of one cup ammonia in a pail of water.

Baking soda is another handy cleaning product. Baking soda and water do a good job of cleaning stainless steel appliances, painted woodwork and bathroom tiles. To remove grease stains from carpets, rub dry baking soda in to the map of the carpet, let it stand and then vacuum. Copper appliances will come out shining if you wet them, sprinkle with baking soda and then rub with half a lemon.

Other household products which often come in handy for cleaning are borax, vinegar, washing soda, bleach, lemon juice, and cream of tartar.

If your clothes don't really look clean, try washing them with one and one-half cups of non-precipitating water conditioner. Don't use a detergent. The detergent curd left in the clothes from previous washings that gives the clothes a gray look will be dissolved.

Use a paste of lemon juice or vinegar and salt to polish copper and brass. For a high luster, polish with fine abrasive powder and a soft cloth. For a dull finish, add linseed oil to rottenstone until it looks like thick cream. Rub it on, wipe off the excess, and polish with a soft cloth.

Using these cleaning tricks and others like them can save you a lot of money.

Commissioners back stamp idea

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Commissioners busied themselves with the following matters Monday during their regular meeting:

— Endorsement of a resolution asking the Postmaster General to approve a stamp displaying the flag of Easton and passage of another resolution stating it is county policy to hire the handicapped.

— Advertisement for bids on an air cooling system for courtroom one and payment of $155 to Frederick Forsyth, Jr. for drawing up specifications.

— Approval was granted for purchase of $812.20 worth of radio equipment for civil defense, $780 for a safe in the bookkeeping office, for the release of $12,000 to Stroud Community House and $10,000 to the county's public library in accordance with plans to spend revenue sharing money.

— Receipt was noted of a letter offering police training at Reading's Criminal Justice Institute in a two year course costing $1,590 per student in tuition. The commissioners will discuss the training with county judges and the sheriff.

— Announcement was made regarding the possibility of an annual researcher's meeting of the National Gypsy Moth Advisory Council in the Poconos. It is still a possibility, according to the commissioners.

Woman struck by car

EAST STROUDSBURG — A Saylorsburg R.D. 2 woman remained in guarded condition at the General Hospital of Monroe County Monday when she was struck by a car late Sunday night on Rte. 209 near Gilbert.

Mrs. Eva George, 54, suffered a fractured skull, a concussion and a fractured shoulder according to a hospital spokesman.

State police at Leighton said she was crossing Rte. 209 in front of the Green Gables Tavern when she was struck by a car operated by Daniel F. Ballisty, 18, Kunkletown R.D. 1.

Police said Mrs. George was taken to the hospital by the West End Ambulance.

In another mishap, state police said Dale A. Evon, 18, Coaldale, was traveling north on Rte. 209 in Kresgeville at 7:25 a.m. Monday when she slowed down for a tractor on the road.

Police said a car driven by Roger W. King, 21, Palmerton, struck the Evon car in the rear. No one was hurt.

Man hurt in crash

STROUDSBURG — A Texas man was treated and released at the General Hospital of Monroe County Sunday night following a two-car mishap on West Main Street, according to Stroud Township police.

Police said Dale Thompson, 76, San Benito, Tex., was pulling out of a private driveway when he struck a car operated by Ray A. Yount, 39, LaVale, Md.

The Thompson car veered into the north bound lane where it struck an apartment building owned by Paul Hubbell.

Residents prepare protest of proposed condominium

Record County Bureau

MT. BETHEL — Residents of Upper Mount Bethel Township will confront township supervisors tonight with their protest over a proposed condominium in the area.

Supervisors approved plans for a 526-unit apartment complex July 10 over approximately 40 residents' complaints. The proposed building would be located in the Williamsburg district.

The group formed the nucleus of Concerned Citizens for Orderly Progress (CCOP) which is planning a legal challenge to the supervisory board.

Water co. rates frozen

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The state Public Utility Commission (PUC) Monday froze existing rates of the Keystone Water Co. pending a final decision on a requested $57,500 annual rate hike.

The increase would affect some 3,000 Keystone customers in Bangor and Roseto in Northampton County. It was originally scheduled to go into effect Wednesday. It would raise residential rates 3.5 cents a day.

The increases were originally requested by the former Bangor Water Co. to become effective Sept. 1 last year. Since then, the utility has merged with 13 other water firms.

Please recycle this newspaper

CCOP has engaged Daniel E. Cohen, an Easton attorney, to give the board the residents' legal position. The group has tried to find some legal loophole in the township approval of condominium plans.

At the time of approval, supervisors claimed they had no legal basis for refusal of the plans.

Solicitor William Cassebaum advised that the board couldn't say "no, just because you don't like something." He emphasized a legal restriction was necessary for rejection of the plans.

Under the township's subdivision ordinance, passed only a few months ago, the construction is legal according to Cassebaum.

Residents, though, feel the board should have rejected the plans anyway. "If they had refused it, it would have at least delayed building," one resident said.

If the builders regarded the refusal as illegal, they could have taken the local officials to court.

Residents believe they are upholding "general aesthetic standards in the community," according to Dr. Larry Rymon, president of CCOP.

"We have a right to do that," Rymon contended. "That's what this country's built on."

Area residents have several questions about the apartments. Plans stipulate that the condominium will be serviced by municipal water and sewerage facilities.

"But we don't have any," Rymon exclaimed.

Haulers simmer over site

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Sewer problems are unpleasant any time. But a hot, humid day in mid-summer is no time for a backed-up septic system when almost everyone who can help is on strike.

Yet that's the way it is for about 100 residents of Monroe County who have called liquid waste haulers to pump out tanks in the last week.

The haulers met Monday night to affirm continuation of the stoppage and predicted major health problems in some areas of the county by the end of another week if they can't get a legal dumping site.

Several of the haulers accompanied field technicians from the Department of Environmental Resources on an inspection of a tract in Coolbaugh Township Monday afternoon.

They said the DER was supposed to issue a temporary permit for dumping on the site, but the technicians left after four hours of poking holes in the land saying they would be in touch in a few days.

The haulers were sorely disappointed.

"We don't want more money. We just want a legal place to dump," said William Halterman, a hauler. He said the work stoppage wasn't aimed at the consumer, but is meant instead to force Monroe County into finding a legal dumping ground for liquid waste.

Municipal treatment plants are not available for most county residents and businesses. The wide use of on-lot sewerage systems means liquid waste haulers provide a vital service.

Impact unknown

No accurate prediction of the strike's impact is possible because no pattern of pumping is available.

Haulers serve homeowners and commercial accounts on "a need basis" with most homes requiring service every two or four years and businesses somewhat more often. Even then, however, frequency of pumping depends on the size and type of drainage field involved.

The haulers said certain diners need frequent clean-outs, such as once weekly. Each hauler said he knew of a hotel or restaurant that needed pumping at least every three weeks.

Haulers hope the lock-out will draw attention to the fact Monroe County is without a legal dumping site and bring public pressure on officials to provide a local facility.

"We will go back to work tomorrow morning if Monroe County will pay our costs and fines," said Halterman, referring to the fact haulers face enforcement by the DER if they dump in the county.

"If we go back to work it is helping the people out," said Harold Smith, another hauler.

Right now the haulers are angry. They don't see much help coming from official quarters and they hope that by bringing public pressure to bear through a strike responsible government action will follow.

They say they can continue the strike indefinitely and they are contacting haulers in neighboring counties to ask if they will agree to stay out of the county and respect the strike.

As the strike wears on, its impact will spread. The question in haulers' minds is will it spread high enough.

Juveniles admit theft

STROUDSBURG — Two Monroe County juveniles were found delinquent and placed on probation for a year after they admitted in court Monday having taken a truck belonging to Detrick's Vending Service.

One juvenile, 18, of Canadensis said he took the truck and admitted removing items from a safe inside the 1970 Ford van on Oct. 3, 1972.

District Attorney James F. Marsh said cigarettes and currency worth $1,229.10 had been removed from the vehicle.

Stroud Township Police Sgt. James Carey testified both youths had been cooperative with investigating officers in returning the missing loot.

The other juvenile, 18, of Gouldsboro admitted acting as an accomplice in the truck theft.

The first youth told the court he is living with his 17-year-old bride of two days in Canadensis and is employed as a tree trimmer earning $3.12 an hour.

The other juvenile delinquent said he is unemployed, but is earning money as a part-time baby-sitter while living with a friend in Gouldsboro.

Both youths said they regretted the delinquent act and would abide by the restrictions imposed by the Monroe County Probation Office.

Judge Arlington W. Williams ordered a year's probation for both, stipulating the unemployed youth accept a job if the probation office finds him one.

'Sidewalk Days' mall causes mixed reaction

By GERARD SUTHERLIN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg Businessmen's Assn. experimental "Sidewalk Days" affair staged on the borough's Main Street Aug. 2-4 was the subject of an organizational evaluation Monday. Reactions appeared mixed.

The meeting, which brought together Main Street merchants, merchants from off-Main Street and borough officials, opened with an evaluation of the sidewalk sales by Victor Rodite of Cabot Associates, planning consultants for the borough.

Rodite lauded the business community's willingness to experiment and praised the borough council for a "positive decision" regarding the sidewalk days.

He noted that the mall concept utilized in the sales is part of a long-range development option for the borough's future growth.

Among the items Rodite noted in his evaluation were the following:

— Traffic and parking problems must be resolved before any permanent mall could ever come to Stroudsburg.

— There were a few 'traffic tieups' at various times of the day, but the borough police efficiently alleviated major tieups that might have been caused by out-of-towners stopping in intersections to ask questions.

— The worst tieups seemed to be no more than an average of two signal light cycles in length before they were cleared. The light at McConnell and Fourth Streets helped stagger the influx of cars into the sale area.

— Although Main Street was blocked off between Fifth and Seventh Streets, it could have been used more by the people. Most customers seemed to keep to the sidewalks just as if cars were in the streets.

— Municipal parking lots were used nearly to capacity, and private lots such as the A.B. Wyckoff garage averaged between 40 and 70 per cent capacity during most of the sales.

— Many store employees used the parking lot at the Stroudsburg High School, but more shoppers could have used it and taken advantage of the shuttle bus.

— In summary, the mall concept has a great potential for future use from an engineering standpoint.

Herb Rosen of the association's sidewalk days committee reported on a questionnaire circulated among customers during the sales. He said only 45 responses were received and tabulated.

Most merchants agreed that this was probably not enough on which to gauge an accurate statistical response on the sales, and association chairman William Wells suggested the possibility of circulating another questionnaire in area newspapers.

A discussion followed at which merchants and borough officials discussed the sales. Some merchants, such as Rosen, and Stanley Zuba and Jules Steinberg of the IGA Food Market, opposed blocking the street during future sidewalk days because their business depends heavily on nearby parking.

Others, such as Wells, Walter Wyckoff and Robert Ugucioni, supported the mall concept, arguing that change is necessary to keep customers who want variety and improved service. Otherwise, they argued, outside shopping center developers would steal the local merchants' business.

War on trucks becomes hotter with parking law

By LORA SHARPE
Pocono Record Reporter

MILFORD — The Borough of Milford is widening its war on truck traffic in the town.

Borough council gave approval Monday night to advertising a borough ordinance limiting truck parking time to 15 minutes.

A special meeting has been set for Aug. 27 for final approval.

Meanwhile, residents of the borough will circulate a petition to Gov. Milton J. Shapp asking that truck traffic be completely removed from Rte. 209 which runs through the center of Milford.

The alternate route now proposed is Rte. 402 and Interstate Rte. 84.

Petitions were distributed Monday by solicitor Sidney L.K. Krawitz.

This is the third time Milford has tried to outlaw trucks in the borough. Borough council passed a noise ordinance in June aimed at trucks.

The borough parking ordinance calls for a time limit on parking of vehicles weighing more than three-quarters of a ton.

Fines between $10 and $15 will be levied for each infraction.

"Indiscriminate truck parking," the ordinance reads in its preamble, "is deemed to be detrimental to the health, safety and welfare of the inhabitants of said borough as well as an impediment to the orderly growth of the community."

The approximately 20 residents at the meeting voiced strong approval of what many feel is a long delayed crackdown on truckers.

Mayor Donald Howe told council that enforcement of the ordinance would require additional police. The borough has only two fulltime and one part-time policemen.

"They're not going to be able to look for stray dogs and chase trucks down a side street at the same time," Howe warned.

Residents suggested hiring a meter maid whose only duty would be ticketing truckers. Others, commenting that most truck parking problems occur at nighttime, asked council for additional police.

Krawitz sternly advised council that the ordinance would only be as effective as it is enforceable.

Petitions cite the same difficulties as the ordinance, adding the detrimental effect of truck traffic to the hotel and motel business in the borough.

Cyclist hurt in crash

STROUDSBURG — Bradley Shoemith, 22, Cresco R.D. 1, was listed in satisfactory condition at the General Hospital of Monroe County with a broken leg suffered in a two-vehicle accident in Stroud Township Monday.

Stroud Township police said Shoemith was driving a motorcycle and pulled out of Chipperfield Drive onto the north bound lane of Rte. 611.

Police said Jason Smith, 20, Forty Fort, was traveling south on Rte. 611 and attempted to turn into a parking lot in front of the motorcycle.

Permanent guard studied for county's West End Park

By GARY BARANIK
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Park Commission may hire a permanent security guard to combat the vandalism at the West End Park in Gilbert.

Secretary Arthur Kitzman and Eugene Miller voiced their approval of such a move, but a final decision will be rendered when the commission prepares its budget next month. The budget will be submitted to the county commissioners by Sept. 10.

Russell Scheller, chairman of the park, said last week vandals broke a window to gain access to the park's recreation building and broke two vending machines owned by the Detrick Vending Co. of Stroudsburg.

Scheller said the park is patrolled part-time by the Monroe County Police Reserves. Two men are employed at one time receiving $3.50 an hour each.

He said the answer may be "24-hour surveillance" but believes the commission can't afford it. It has spent about half of its $1,200 budget for security this year.

Commission chairman Elmer Kreger and Scheller were hoping the state police from the Fern Ridge barracks would patrol the park but that has not been occurring.

Kreger said "I feel the parents in the area should help us with surveillance."

In other business, the commission said it will ask Edward Hess Associates, the county's engineering firm, to inquire why the Arbor Fence Co. of Bethlehem hasn't built a chain link fence around the park's swimming pool and baseball diamond.

The commission contracted for the fence in May. It was supposed to be constructed in 20 days.

Kreger said the baseball field should be ready for use in October. He is hopeful two tennis courts will be installed in the park next year.

Kitzman will send the commission's members attendance records to the county commissioners in an effort to have them either cut down on the park's commission members or appoint members who attend the meetings.

Grand jury to hear theft case

HAWLEY — Chris M. Decandido, 19, Lords Valley, waived his preliminary hearing on theft charges Monday before District Magistrate Dore James and is held for the Pike County grand jury.

He was arrested by the state police at Milford July 14 for the theft of tire rims and tires taken at Bruce Lake.

Developer seeks approval for motel treatment plant

TANNERSVILLE — Peter Ahnert, owner of Fernwood and Howard Johnson's, asked the Pocono Township Planning Commission Monday night to sponsor a sewage treatment plant for a 100 unit motel he hopes to locate in the township.

Although Ahnert would not reveal the franchise of the proposed motel, he indicated its structure would be similar to the Howard Johnson's located in Delaware Water Gap.

Ahnert wants to locate the motel on the Glenwood Hall property adjacent to the Elementary Center in Tannersville.

Ahnert is seeking township sponsorship in order to allow other developers to eventually tie into the system while maintaining sewage treatment standards set by the Department of Environmental Resources (DER).

DER wants to limit the number of treatment systems discharging into the Pocono Creek.

The designation means effluent discharged into the stream must match stream purity.

Ahnert said he will build and maintain the plant at his expense, allowing others to join the system if they pay for the necessary expansion.

According to project engineer Bill Hopkins, the proposed plant won't cost Pocono Township a cent.

The commission tabled the proposal for consideration. Chairman Stuart Pipher indicated planners will look favorably upon the proposal, stating, "This kind of proposal is what we had in mind."

Car fire death labeled suspicious by coroner

HONESDALE — The death of a Wayne County man found in a burning car near Rock Lake last Friday was labeled "suspicious" by Wayne County Coroner Robert Jennings Monday.

Dr. Marvin E. Aronson, chief medical examiner of Philadelphia, and Jennings performed an autopsy on the body tentatively identified as Senen Garcia, 50, Elk Lake, Waymart R.D. 1.

Jennings said, "We have determined that it is a suspicious death. We can't release what we did find because it would hinder the investigation."

He said Dr. Frederick Reiders, National Medical Laboratories, Willow Grove, will perform additional laboratory tests later this week to determine if any accelerants were used in the fire.

Jennings said X-rays of Garcia were taken and he has subpoenaed the victim's records from a New Jersey hospital to obtain positive identification.

The car was found about 150 feet off of Rte. 247 in a rural area in Northern Wayne County, state police at Honesdale reported.

Jennings said the fire originated in the front seat area and believes it wasn't an ordinary car fire due to the excessive charring of the body and the inside of the car.

The coroner also noted a woman living near the scene said she heard noises which could have been shots and also saw flashing lights where the car was found.

State police said the car was traveling north on Rte. 247 but didn't know why it left the road.

Early evening fire destroys cottage valued at $15,000

TANNERSVILLE — A cottage valued at $15,000 was destroyed by a fire Monday night at the Pocono Camp Site along the Sullivan Trail, four miles north of Tannersville.

Pocono Township Fire Chief William Raish said the one-story wood structure was gutted by the time firemen arrived at the scene. No one was hurt.

Raish said the four-room cottage was owned by Joseph Curcio of Newfield, N.J., and was rented to the Mary Bernhardt family of Vineland, N.J. for the week.

The fire chief said the blaze started in the bedroom but didn't know the cause.

He said his fire company was late arriving at the scene because one of the Bernhardt children said the cottage was at the Pocono Camp Grounds in Mount Pocono.

The Mount Pocono Fire Co. arrived there to find no fire. Raish said the caller didn't know the exact location of the cottage, and by the time Pocono Township arrived, it was too late.

Raish said there were a number of cottages in the area but none of them were in danger of catching on fire. Firemen obtained all of the necessary water from their tankers.

Meeting canceled

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Commissioners have canceled their business meeting for Aug. 23 in order to attend a county government conference in Wilkes-Barre.

Baseball misses Ruth

It's been 25 years since the great Babe Ruth faded away into his reward, ending the life of the greatest home run hitter and legend in the history of baseball. He will be dead 25 years come Thursday.

With Henry Aaron closing in on his all-time home run record of 714 home runs in his 21 seasons with the Red Sox, Yankees and old Boston Braves, the name of Babe Ruth has been bantered about the past few weeks with discussions as to just which one of the two is the greatest slugger of all time.

Well, no doubt it's the Babe. He's the one who started the home run craze many years ago, when as a young pitcher with the Boston Red Sox, he would play in the outfield while not pitching. He slugged a few round trippers and that was the end of his mound days.

But the Babe meant more to the public as a person than as a home run slugger. Kids everywhere were befriended by Ruth, who called everyone "kid" in a warm manner. The big guy loved kids and would think nothing of taking off to a hospital or sick bed to visit some youngster who was under the weather.

Had he lived to see Aaron's assault on his home run record, chances are Ruth, who was born in Baltimore in 1895, would be rooting for the record to be broken. As a matter of fact, when Hank Greenberg went into the final game of the 1938 season with 58 home runs, Ruth sent him a telegram urging him to bear down because "records were meant to be broken."

There's no question the Bambino got a raw deal from baseball's moguls after his playing days were over. He received an offer to manage the Detroit Tigers after the 1934 season, but he didn't get the job. When he was offered a manager's position, the Yankees offered him the job at Newark, but the Babe was no minor leaguer.

Ruth was a big guy, with a propensity for downing huge amounts of food. His spindly legs often looked to be barely carrying him as he trotted around the bases after a monstrous shot into some far-fetched bleachers.

But he was also a fine hitter, as well as being a fast man for his size. In 1923, he hit .393, followed by a .378 performance in 1924. After a sick bout in 1925, Ruth hit .372 the next season, 1926, and added a .356 average the year he hit his 60 home runs, 1927.

At the age of 36 in 1931, Ruth hit .373 and hit .341 the following season. As a pitcher, his lifetime mark was 93-44 and he held the World Series consecutive scoreless innings record until Whitey Ford broke it in 1961. His lifetime batting average was a robust .342 and he was among the charter members of the Baseball era that produced such stars as Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Al Simpson, Greenberg, Lou Gehrig, George Sisler, Rogers Hornsby and so many others it's tough to name them all without leaving someone out.

Ruth meant so much to America and the game of baseball that during the Second World War, the Japanese attempted to outrage the American Marines fighting in the South Pacific by making fun of Ruth and maybe causing a G.I. or two to give himself away in the dark jungles.

But then Ruth, as Gehrig, at the young age of 36 before him, contracted a disease which sapped his strength and left him but a shell of the man his friends and baseball opponents once knew. He had cancer and in the end, the dreaded "C" took such a toll on Ruth that he weighed less than 100 pounds when he passed on in 1948.

Ruth never saw expansion move teams into Anaheim or Minneapolis-St. Paul, but he had a hand in it anyway. You see, Ruth was of an era which we'll never again see in sports, an era in which men fought tooth-and-nail for a stolen base or a hit which would give their team victory.

And we'll never see anyone like Ruth again, either. Because to the American public of the Depression, when he earned more than President Hoover did, he was "Mr. Baseball." And to the kids of the world, not only in this country, he was "Mr. Everything."

No matter how many home runs Henry Aaron finished his career with after he passes Ruth, the Babe's still number one in my book. Although we're from different eras, you can still picture the big guy rounding third after a shot into the Yankee Stadium right field seats.

He's done that for baseball fans everywhere. Some were fortunate enough to have seen him and maybe even seen a home run fly off his bat. Others just hear about him, stories which still amaze people, such as the shot he called in the 1932 World Series against the Cubs.

But baseball misses Ruth. He's somewhere, though, and he's watching over the game. You would, too, if you helped build the sport the way he did.

Yanks' Medich cures Angels, 6-0

NEW YORK (UPI) — Roy White blasted homers from each side of the plate and reached into the stands to rob Bob Oliver of a two-run homer Monday night as the New York Yankees ripped the California Angels, 6-0, behind the five-hit pitching of George Medich.

White, who solo-homered batting righthanded off Angel starter and loser Rudy May in the first inning and then hit a two-run homer batting lefthanded off reliever Dick Lange in the second, stood the crowd on its feet with his leaping backhanded stab of Oliver's shot to left in the sixth.

It was the second time in his career that White, who now has 14 homers this year, has switch-hit homers in the same game.

Medich, who struck out four and walked four, worked his way out of jams in the third, seventh and eighth innings to earn his ninth victory against six losses. The loss was May's 12th in 15 career decisions against the Yankees and ran his 1973 record to 7-12. He hasn't beaten the Yankees since August 20, 1971.

After White's homer in the first inning, New York scored a run on a walk to Bobby Murcer, an infield single by Thurman Munson and a run-scoring single by Graig Nettles. New York rallied for four more runs in the second inning as Felipe Alou led off with a line drive double into the left field corner, moved to third on a bunt single by Gene Michael and scored on a sacrifice fly by Horace Clarke.

Matty Alou then pushed his hitting streak to 10 games with a double which scored Michael from first base and sent May to an early shower. Lange relieved May and White greeted the lefthander with his second homer of the game.

Voice ordered Isaac to quit

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — NASCAR driver Bobby Isaac of Catawba, N.C., pulled out of stock car racing for good after hearing a voice tell him to quit while running in the Talladega 500 Sunday, the Charlotte News reported Monday.

Isaac, 39, told the News, in an interview in Talladega, Ala., "Something told me to quit. I don't know anything else to do but abide by it."

A veteran of stock car racing since 1955 when he began to compete on the sportsman circuit in the Carolinas and Georgia, Isaac retired his car after 90 laps Sunday and handed over the driving chores to CoCo Marlin.

Isaac said the death of Larry Smith on the 14th lap of the event didn't influence his decision.

"I had no thoughts of quitting before the race and nothing happened on the track to influence me," he was quoted as saying.

He said he was unaware of Smith's death until after he pulled out.

Isaac was unavailable for further comment on his withdrawal Monday evening.

Married to a schoolteacher and the father of three children, Isaac set a speed record at the long Talladega course in 1970, touring the oval at 201.104 miles per hour.

"I'm not afraid. I had no close calls yesterday. I wasn't afraid I was going to wreck."

"If I've lost anything in racing I lost it in my last four or five laps yesterday," he told News sports writer Bob Myers. He did not elaborate.

"I don't have anything to prove to myself or to anybody else. I know how it feels to win and lose and I know how it feels to be a champion—and now I know how it feels to quit," he told the News.

Driving a Dodge, Isaac won $106,426 in 1971 and was one of only four drivers to crack the $100,000 mark that year.

Isaac set several records at the Bonneville Salt Flats in 1971 and won the North Carolina Sportsman Championship in 1968.

Eagles prep for Steeler exhibition

CHESTER, Pa. (UPI) — The Philadelphia Eagles began preparations Monday for their only pre-season home game Thursday with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Coach Mike McCormack said the team practiced for two hours after watching films of last Saturday's 45-21 loss to the Cincinnati Bengals.

Speaking about the loss, which made the Eagles 1-1 in pre-season play, McCormack pointed out some bright spots he said were not apparent in the defeat.

"I thought (guard) Mark Nordquist did an outstanding job on Mike Reid," he said. "Tom Bailey did some excellent running and blocking from fullback."

McCormack also praised 6-8 wide receiver Harold Carmichael, veteran wide receiver Ben Hawkins and rookie strong safety Randy Logan.

American cagers favored to win 'University' title

MOSCOW (UPI) — The United States basketball team, fresh from a triumphant tour of East European countries, arrived at the heavily-guarded University of Moscow today with hopes of extending an 11-game unbeaten streak right through to the finals of the World University Games.

The U.S. cagers, led by All-America David Thompson of North Carolina State and Providence College standouts Marvin Barnes and Kevin Stacom, loomed as favorites in the seventh edition of the games after sweeping to three victories in Poland, five more in Czechoslovakia and another three in Bulgaria before arriving here.

But as the basketball team began its first practices, the American delegation still found themselves virtual prisoners in the tightly-secured university living quarters, with no one permitted to leave without a proper pass and no members of the press corps allowed past the surrounding iron gates.

Although mildly surprised at the extreme security precautions taken by the Russians, head U.S. basketball coach Ed Badger of Wilbur Wright Jr. College in Chicago said he didn't believe too much could rattle his team members—even though they average only 19 years of age.

"This is a new experience," said Badger, when informed that his practice sessions would have to be held within the University complex. "We were able to move around freely with only our visas in the other Iron Curtain countries."

"But maybe all this is good—especially after what happened in Munich last year. Besides, we're here to play basketball, not engage in politics. Whatever they want here will be all right with us. I'm not worried about these kids."

Badger said that despite the team's youth (all were underclassmen last year) and the rigid two-day training schedule he was forced to use during the first few weeks, the players have reacted favorably towards all the pressures and inconveniences of the grueling tour.

"They've had a great attitude toward all of this," Badger said. "As for the way they've been winning, well, I'm not surprised. After all, we've got a lot of talent on this team even though we didn't get everyone we had hoped to get."

"The closest margin anyone has come to us was 14 points in Bulgaria. I don't think these kids are even thinking about Cuba and the Russians the way everyone else seems to be."

One U.S. athlete did get past the guards late Sunday night and that proved to be costly. John Crosby, 22-year-old NCAA gymnastics champion from Southern Connecticut College, was stricken with appendicitis and was rushed to a nearby hospital for an emergency operation.

Nicklaus will enter 'match' event

PGA winner will take it easy

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus, once again the king, and Tom Weiskopf, who figures the pressure may finally be off, plan to take it a little easy the rest of the year.

Both Nicklaus, who won his third PGA Championship and 14th major title Sunday, and Weiskopf plan only four days of competitive golf in the next month.

"I'm going home and do whatever the kids want to do," said Nicklaus, but he doesn't want anyone to think he's slowing down now that he owns more major championships than anyone in history.

"I'm still a young man," said Nicklaus, who won't be 34 years old until next January. "I'm going to continue playing for a long time."

Nicklaus and Weiskopf have similar schedules mapped out for the weeks ahead. They'll play in the U.S. Professional Match Play championship at Raleigh, N.C., Aug. 25-26, and the World Series of Golf at Akron, Ohio, Sept. 8-9. That's all.

"I'll play in the Ryder Cup matches and I have to defend in the Disney World Open in December, and I'll probably play one or two others, but I don't know what they'll be right now," Nicklaus said.

One of them certainly will be the inaugural $125,000 Ohio Kings Island Open at the Jack Nicklaus Golf Center in Cincinnati Oct. 4-7. "There's no way I can get out of that one," said Nicklaus.

Weiskopf, who had finished in the top five in nine straight tournaments—five of which he won, including the British Open—didn't miss it by much here.

He bogeyed the 16th and 17th holes of the final round Sunday and finished in a tie for sixth place, six strokes behind Nicklaus.

Weiskopf said his schedule the rest of the year would also include the Ryder Cup and the Piccadilly World Match Play championship at Wentworth, England, but now he must spend the next week or two sorting out the various business offers which came his way in his hot streak.

The hot streak Weiskopf has compiled—and few people believe his success is really at an end even though the streak might be—has firmly established him among the world's top players. Not since Byron Nelson won 11 straight tournaments in 1945 has anyone played as consistently as Weiskopf.

"I probably don't even realize how great that streak was," Weiskopf said. "Maybe 20 years from now I will."

Fever strikes Secretariat; colt will pass up 'Travers'

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (UPI) — "I hope to God it's not serious."

Trainer Lucien Laurin spoke these words Monday with reference to his prize 3-year-old colt Secretariat, who came down with a virus over the weekend and will not be run in Saturday's $100,000 added Travers Stakes here.

"He's got a temperature of 101," said Laurin in referring to his Triple Crown winner. "It's some kind of bug. He's also got a cough, but there's a lot of coughing going around."

The Meadow Stable colt, already syndicated for a record $6.08 million when he retires to stud next year, was found ailing over the weekend and the illness forced Laurin to call off today's scheduled workout for "Super Red." Cancellation of the workout, Laurin said, would make it impossible to get Secretariat ready for the 1 1/4 mile Travers.

Secretariat, with over $900,000 in career winnings, was upset Aug. 4 by Onion in the Whitney Stakes. The next day, Laurin said, it was noticed that the horse's nose was running.

Laurin had two veterinarians examine Secretariat and it was discovered the colt was also running a fever. The findings of the vets, Laurin said, prompted him not to plan to enter Secretariat in the Travers.

In addition to winning the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes this year, Secretariat also has captured 10 of 14 other races he has entered in less than two full years of competition. He won the Kentucky Derby and Belmont in record times and there was some dispute that he also should have been credited with a record time in the Preakness.

After the Travers, Secretariat was next scheduled to run in a $250,000 match race Sept. 15 against stablemate Riva Ridge at Belmont Park, and Laurin said he expected that race would be unaffected by the illness.

"There's plenty of time between now and then for him to recover," Laurin said. "Five weeks is all the time in the world."

Top DH will get $1,000

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — William Loeb, publisher of the Manchester Union Leader and New Hampshire Sunday News, has offered a $1,000 prize and a plaque to the outstanding designated hitter in the American League.

Loeb made the offer in a letter to American League President Joe Cronin after reading a suggestion for the establishment of the award in a sports column Friday by Joe Barnia, executive sports editor of the Union Leader.

The award would be similar to other awards established in the major leagues, like the Most Valuable Player, or Cy Young, or Rookie of the Year. If the DH rule is adopted in the National League, then the award would pertain to both leagues.

Loeb suggested that the same balloters, the members of the Baseball Writers Association, also participate in the voting for this award. The winner would be invited to be an honored guest of the annual Union Leader Fund Inc. baseball dinner, held in Manchester during the winter, where both the money and the plaque would be presented.

A copy of Loeb's letter to Cronin was also sent to Joseph Heiling of the Houston Post, who is the president of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

McQuay finished as Argonaut

TORONTO (UPI) — Leon McQuay flew to Tampa, Fla., Monday, cloudy about his football future but certain that his days as a Toronto Argonaut are over and, if he doesn't play in the Canadian Football League this season, he doesn't play anywhere.

According to the Argos' management, the 23-year old "Tampa Tempest," regarded as one of the league's premier running backs, is under suspension until Friday.

By that time, he will have sat out two league games and, according to the CFL's standard player contract, will be out $6,428—a respective percentage of his $45,000 salary with the Argos—and a figure for which his Toronto lawyer Alan Eagleson is suing the football club.

McQuay was suspended after an Aug. 4 practice for allegedly cursing Assistant Coach Rod Hume following a fight with teammate Dick Aldridge. Since then, Argonaut Head Coach John Rauch has said McQuay was done as an Argonaut, "for the sake of the entire team."

The Argonauts extended McQuay's suspension until Friday, apparently to gain time to arrange a trade with another CFL team. If a trade could not be engineered by Friday, it was expected McQuay would be placed on waivers, available to any CFL club for the standard waiver price of $350.

Padre sale tops meeting agenda

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — The National League will get a one day jump on the American League with a special meeting today in advance of the official opening of the summer baseball meetings, and the topic of conversation will be the San Diego Padres.

National League owners will consider the merits of the Padres' proposed move to Washington, D.C., for the 1974 season and the legal action started by the city of San Diego to keep the club.

The Padres have a long-term lease and the city has sought a restraining order to block the move of the club to Washington.

The Padres need unanimous approval by the owners for the move and will probably get it, if not at the meetings this week, then at least by World Series time.

Both leagues will also consider the possibility of inter-league play on a limited basis for next season. The most likely proposal would have each club play four or six games against a team from the other league. The plan would permit natural geographic rivals to meet in league play.

An inter-league committee will recommend adoption of the plan to National League owners Tuesday and to both leagues Wednesday. The members of the committee are American League President Joe Cronin, National League President Club Feeney, Milwaukee Brewers' President Alan "Bud" Selig, and Cincinnati Reds' President Francis Dale.

Selig said he is sure that "some action will be taken" on the recommendation for inter-league play.

The meeting officially gets underway at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday with a joint session of both leagues. The two leagues will then meet separately and another joint session is scheduled before the close Thursday.

DISCOUNT DEPARTMENT STORE

The logo for Food Lane Supermarkets is a black and white graphic. It features the words "Food Lane" in a large, elegant, cursive script. Below this, the word "SUPERMARKETS" is written in a bold, uppercase, sans-serif font. At the bottom left, the word "LANE" is enclosed in a rectangular border, with "DISCOUNT DEPARTMENT STORES" written in small capital letters underneath it. To the right of the "LANE" box, the text "NO. 1 LOW PRICE LEADER" is displayed in a bold, uppercase, sans-serif font, arranged in three lines.
